Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Village School-Ma'am Act III, neater, with a more dressed-up appearance. Elvira Pratt. A small, wiry, nervous little woman, the typical village old maid dressmaker and gossip. She may have frizzes or crimped hair, but is not a caricature with the antiquated side-curls. Should be plain, quaint and amusing, but not exaggerated. In first two acts, a tidy dark dress of some cheap material. Act III, a bit more elaborate, but not overdone. Posie. A lanky, awkward and slow-witted girl of fifteen or thereabouts, lazy and generally half asleep. First two acts, cheap calico dress or large apron, rather untidy; hair in pigtails or long braids, somewhat awry. Act III, clean apron, hair arranged more neatly and tied with gay ribbons. Properties Two or three boxes and barrels; a few articles such as seen in a country store. Country newspaper. Stick and jack-knife, letter in envelope, drummers grip or sample case, several parcels of various sizes, tied up in wrapping paper; G. A. R. badge, gingham apron, kitchen towel, new dress for Ida May,...
