Now this week we have both of these interests represented here, one of them in a conference of the religious workers in the state universities, and this one, this tax conference; and I make this remark in the outset because I wish to explain that it will be necessary for me to retire at once from this conference in order to introduce a speaker in the other one. The Latin historian Livy relates that when the Gauls were about to capture and destroy Rome some four hundred years before Christ, the people decided to have the best of their young men go into the impregnable citadel with the remaining food supply so that they could survive and perpetuate the Roman name, while the rest of the people, commoners and senators, would remain and die by the hand of the Gauls. This, he says, was done. Commoner and Senator accepted death together so that a few of their blood might survive to maintain the Roman State. Eight hundred years later the Roman Empire was invaded and overwhelmed by new breeds of barbarians from the North, the Goths and the Vandals. Two Roman historians of the latter period, Ammianus and...
