Not illustrated. 1853 Excerpt: .And, all the while, Miss (J)race stood by him, white and still as any stone; and when he had ended she heaved a great sigh as much as to say her work was done and her end was accomplished. But the old lord never touched his organ again, and died within the year; and no wonder! for, on the morrow of that wild and fearful night, the shepherds, coming down the Fell side, found Miss Maude sitting, all crazy and smiling, under the holly-trees, nursing a dead child--with a terrible mark on its right shoulder. But that was not what killed it, said Dorothy; it was the frost and the cold--every wild creature was in its hole, and every beast in its fold--while the child and its mother were turned out to wander on the Fells! And now you know all! and I wonder if you are less frightened now? I was more frightened than ever; but I said I was not. I wished Miss Rosamond and myself well out of that dreadful house for ever; but I would not leave her, and I dared not take her away. But oh! how I watched her, and guarded her! W- j bolted the doors, and shut the window; shutters fast, an hour or more before dark: rather than leave them open five minutes too late. But my little lady still heard the j weird child crying and mourning; and not all we could do or say, could keep...
