The aims of the National Socialist women policy have not been as simple as Goebbels puts it in 1939. On the contrary, they were contradictory. Firstly, the regime wanted to reduce women to their biological function. Their central task was breeding. This procreation policy bore two major advantages: It helped the Nazis in pursuing their racial policy of purifying the Aryan race and it provided a means for a decrease in the mass unemployment, as married women were supposed to give up their jobs. Secondly, this family-orientated policy aimed at recording women and girls as party members and to organise them for this purpose in Frauenverbände (women's associations). A complete change of this policy took place by the outbreak of World War II and during the war years. Total war forced the Nazis to abandon the domestic ideal for women; hence a total mobilization of female labour was attempted although this led to a contradiction within Nazi ideology. The intention of the conservative revolution to return women to the home had to be subordinated to other ideological goals - industrial expansion and war preparation. The following essay will examine the development of Nazi policy towards women and will, on the basis of primary sources, assess the experiences of...
